Introduction

To create a high performing team, we must replace typical management activities like supervising, checking, monitoring and controlling with new behaviors like coaching and communicating. One of the notable HR trends will be the evolution of the traditional performance management from mid and or year-end performance appraisal reviews to real time, regular and consistent performance conversations. Ongoing performance coaching, career coaching and feedback sessions between superiors and their reporting staff will be part of supervision. The multi-generational workforce in the organization especially the millennials also favor regular coaching and feedback as there is mutual understanding, listening and communication to enable them to perform and develop further.

Objectives

The objective of the Building a High Performance Organization through Coaching training is to;

- Identify the purpose and benefits of providing performance coaching and feedback.
- Acquire a positive mindset and essential skills for effective coaching and feedback.
- Apply Coaching framework in various coaching situations with your subordinates.
- Use coaching for performance, career conversations, career development and “stay” interview. The process initiating, implementing and sustaining an effective coaching and feedback culture in the organization.
- Provide positive and constructive feedback that is fruitful and motivating for the staff.
- Identifying the process initiating, implementing and sustaining an effective coaching and feedback culture in the organization.

Target Groups

This training is suitable to a wide range of professionals but will greatly benefit;

- HR Generalists
- HR Managers,
- Heads of HR
- HR Officers
